(57) Abstract :

Our Invention Preventing gender-based crimes, kidnapping, and rape of girls and women is a Sexual violence is a major problem faced by women and girls in India. It is already a challenge for survivors to obtain justice in the Indian legal system, and those from the country's marginalized communities face even more major barriers. There were 32,033 reported rape cases in 2019, with 33,356 in 2018. According to official crime data, there were 3,486 reported cases of rape against Dalit (Scheduled Caste) women and girls in 2019, and 1,110 reported rape cases against Adivasi women and girls (Scheduled Tribes). Survivors of sexual violence face huge barriers in accessing justice, including community pressure to drop the case, discriminatory attitudes of police and judicial officers, insufficient legal aid, and discouraging conviction rates. These challenges are often magnified if the survivors are members of India's marginalized communities, particularly if they are Dalits, Adivasis, or Muslims. Rape is a highly gendered violent behavior where most of the sexually violent perpetrators are men, and most of their victims are women. Rape, the most common form of violence against women has been a part of human culture and is a profound violation of woman's bodily integrity and can be a form of torture. The subject of rape comprises more than the actual physical act as it involves many factors such as law and customs, social, and political events and so on. While the physical reality of rape has been unchanged over time and place, however, the perceptions, ideas, and laws about rape have changed.
