2. EVENT DETAILS

IIHMR University organised the inaugural ceremony of the PhD Programme – Cohort 13 in July 2026. The ceremony marked the formal commencement of the doctoral journey of the newly admitted research scholars and provided an academic platform to introduce them to the expectations, structure, and research culture of the University.

The new cohort attracted scholars from across India and overseas, with women constituting 40% of the admitted cohort. This reflects the expanding reach and inclusive character of IIHMR University's doctoral programme.

The inaugural ceremony provided an orientation to doctoral regulations, programme requirements, coursework, academic expectations, research ethics, and research opportunities across disciplines. The scholars were also introduced to the importance of systematic inquiry, academic integrity, methodological rigour, responsible conduct of research, and the development of evidence-informed solutions to contemporary challenges.

The programme highlighted IIHMR University's multidisciplinary research environment, covering areas related to healthcare management, public health, pharmaceutical management, healthcare analytics, development management, and implementation science. The interaction enabled the scholars to understand the academic responsibilities associated with doctoral research and the importance of contributing original and meaningful knowledge to their respective fields.

The ceremony also reinforced the University's commitment to providing high-quality doctoral education and fostering a supportive research ecosystem. Through structured coursework, faculty guidance, research supervision, seminars, and interdisciplinary engagement, the new scholars were encouraged to pursue rigorous and socially relevant research.

Overall, the inaugural ceremony marked an important milestone in the academic development of Cohort 13 and further strengthened IIHMR University's expanding role in doctoral education, research, and capacity building.
