

Headline- IIHMR University Organizes P.D. Agarwal Blood Donation Drive in Collaboration with SDMH, Jaipur

Print Coverage:

Date	Publication	Edition
22 September, 2026	India Education Diary	All

About Advertisement Team Privacy Policy Contact

🌞 26 °C Delhi

India education diary
Wednesday, September 23, 2026

HOME NEWS STATE NEWS SCHOLARSHIP EXAM NOTIFICATION COMPETITION EXAM RESULTS EDU EVENTS

EDUCATIONAL NEWS UNIVERSITY NEWS

IIHMR University Organises P.D. Agarwal Blood Donation Drive in Collaboration with SDMH, Jaipur

By iednewsdesk September 22, 2026

Jaipur, 22nd September 2026: IIHMR University successfully organised the P.D. Agarwal Blood Donation Drive 2026 on Thursday, in collaboration with Santokba Durlabhji Memorial Hospital (SDMH), Jaipur. The drive was organised in memory of Late Shri P.D. Agarwal, visionary entrepreneur, philanthropist, and founder of the Transport Corporation of India (TCI) Group.

The blood donation drive witnessed an enthusiastic response from students, faculty members, staff, and NSS volunteers. A total of 172 individuals registered for the camp, out of which 101 participants successfully donated blood, making a meaningful contribution towards supporting patients requiring blood during critical medical treatment, surgeries, trauma care, and other life-saving interventions. Participants were screened according to medical eligibility criteria, including haemoglobin level and body weight requirements.

--- Advertisement ---

Among the 101 successful blood donors, 68 were male and 33 were female, demonstrating strong participation from the IIHMR University community and reflecting a collective commitment towards saving lives, promoting voluntary blood donation, and supporting healthcare needs in the community.

Speaking on the occasion, Dr. P. R. Sodani, President, IIHMR University, said, "Blood donation is one of the simplest yet most meaningful ways in which we can contribute to saving lives. We believe that education must extend beyond classrooms and encourage individuals to become responsible and compassionate contributors to society. Organising this drive in memory of Late Shri P.D. Agarwal ji is particularly significant as it brings together the values of service, social responsibility and care for the community."

The initiative was supported by 39 NSS volunteers, who played an important role in participant registration, donor facilitation, coordination, and awareness generation throughout the event. The collaboration with SDMH enabled the University to conduct the blood donation camp with the support of healthcare professionals.

The campaign also highlighted the spirit of volunteerism within the university community. Donors represented multiple academic programmes and departments, underscoring IIHMR University's commitment to fostering social responsibility, public service, and community engagement among its students and staff.